

MOON GENASI

While many genasi result from an ancestral genie in their bloodline, there are also those that are born from surges of elemental energy. Though not often thought of as a primal elemental form, the rock and light of the moon hold great power that can change the very nature of creatures that are exposed to them for long periods of time.

Moon genasi are rare beings, coming from lands that are either blessed by lunar deities or have somehow come to possess a remarkable amount of lunar meteorites. The genasi that arise from these influences are notable as possessing pale or ashen hair and eyes, innate magical talent, and often carefully manicured or composed demeanors.
